Paul Smith

Paul has over 30 years of experience in the construction industry, holding senior management roles with contracting companies. After initially completing engineering qualifications, he earned a Bachelor of Business and has since managed complex projects across various sectors, including education, health, aged care, and commercial developments. With expertise in Early Contractor Involvement (ECI) and 2 Stage Managing Contractor delivery methods, Paul has helped set up projects for success, ensuring that risks, value management options, and safety considerations are addressed from the outset. Recently, he co-founded Construction Unity Group, providing advisory services, project management, superintendency, and construction services. Paul is also deeply involved with Legacy Brisbane, serving on the Legacy Brisbane Board and as Chair of the Legacy House Development Committee, where he is excited to contribute to the delivery of a new head office for the organisation.

Todd Crowley

Todd has a long history of supporting both for-purpose organisations and the Australian Defence Force. He has provided strategic guidance to a range of organisations, including the Edmund Rice Foundation, Xavier, Red Cross, and Endeavour Foundation, and has recently supported the Legacy Brisbane Development Committee in their efforts to transition to a new headquarters. Over the past 20 years, Todd has worked with the ADF, allied forces, the U.N., and international development agencies, providing strategy and logistics support in remote and austere locations such as Timor Leste, Afghanistan, and the Democratic Republic of Congo. As Managing Director of Vaxa Group, a Brisbane-based firm specializing in communications, data analytics, and organizational growth, Todd has a proven track record of delivering impactful outcomes for commercial, government, NGO, and for-purpose clients.

Prof Elisabeth Findlay

Professor Elisabeth Findlay is an academic at Queensland College of Art and Design at Griffith University. Elisabeth has held various senior leadership roles within the tertiary sector, with responsibilities for strategy and the management of financial and staff resources.

Elisabeth was a military spouse for nearly four decades. Her husband, a veteran of five deployments, is a retired Major General. They have two children and moved 17 times before settling in Brisbane.

Dr Amy Johnson

Dr Amy Johnson is a senior lecturer and Head of Course for Arts at Central Queensland University. She holds a PhD in military sociology. Amy's research focuses on supporting modern Defence families, particularly through projects like the Children Family Resilience Program, which provides online resources for parents and educators of young children from military families. With lived experience as both a reserve officer in the Royal Australian Navy and the partner of a Navy veteran, Amy was a finalist in the 2023 Prime Minister's National Veterans' Employment Awards. She has been a Legatee with the Rockhampton and Central Queensland Group since 2021 and lives in Rockhampton with her husband, two teenage sons and their golden retriever.

Andrew Middleton

Lieutenant Colonel (LTCOL) Middleton, now retired, served as the Australian Army Liaison Officer to the United States Marine Corps in Quantico, Virginia. A distinguished graduate of the Royal Military College and the Australian Command and Staff College, he holds a Master of Military Studies and several graduate diplomas. LTCOL Middleton's military career spanned numerous operational roles, including Joint Aviation Operations Officer on Operation Anode, Troop Commander on Operation Sumatra Assist, and Battle Captain in Headquarters Regional Command – South during Operation Slipper. He also commanded Joint Task Force 637.2 Aviation Rotary Wing Group during the Queensland Flood Relief. LTCOL Middleton's leadership was recognised as Army Aviator of the Year, and he played key staff roles in various commands, culminating in his role as Commanding Officer of the Army Helicopter School. Outside of his military career, he is passionate about triathlons, photography, and reading autobiographies, and is an active volunteer for organizations including Surf Lifesaving Australia and Legacy.
